GrowthSpace provides personalized one-on-one coaching, mentoring, and training to help teams realize their full potential and maximize their impact.

"I see results at every level of the organization, just from the 14 employees who have gone through this already."

Transform your team's performance

As a leader, it's not easy to carve out time for employee development, but it is crucial. Consider this as a unique opportunity to invest in your team's professional development with personalized support from dedicated experts. Help them find the time to drive their growth, as well as business value, and build a stronger and more capable team.

How it works

This journey will help you and your team progress toward your goals. To get started, you will hold an alignment meeting with each employee you wish to participate in the program. Together you will identify the focus area and specific skill set each employee will work on to propel their growth. Then, GrowthSpace's powerful matching algorithm will select the top matches for them from a pool of over 1,500 experts. Once a match is made, they will meet their expert for a growth sprint, which includes 5 one-hour online sessions.

What to expect from the program

- The growth sprint takes six to eight weeks to complete, taking into account one to two weeks between sessions. This time gives participants a chance to practice implementing the strategies discussed with their experts.
- You may be asked to provide feedback about your employee's progress after the program ends. It's important that you share your feedback so we can understand the impact and success this experience has had on them.
- The sessions are confidential to allow employees to speak openly with their expert and optimize their growth.

May the growth be with you!
